"CHARLIE HITS THE TRAIL."

Charlie Siringo led the kind of a western life that made you want to be a cowboy at once. He had enough adventures to give the movie writers a dozen plots for real tough action pictures. He punched cattle for Shanghai-Pierce, rode the Chisholm Trail, once roped a buffalo, and joined in the chase for Billy the Kid. Add to that the fact that he was a range detective, absolutely fearless, a top rider, a deadly shot with either the rifle or six gun — and you have the ideal man of the West.

He was born in Matagorda County, Texas on February 7, 1855 and he headed for the last roundup in Hollywood, California on October 19, 1928. Of his ability to shoot, it was said by a man who knew him: "He was deadly with a Colt's .45, a weapon he carried at all times. I have thrown up an empty bean can and watched him, shooting from the hip, riddle it in flight. Yet he had never, so far as anyone knows, taken a human life."

Suppose we let Charlie Siringo tell you about his first experience on the Chisholm Trail:

"That coming spring, it being 1874, I hired to Leander Ward of Jackson County to help gather a herd of steers for the Muckleroy Brothers who were going to drive them to Kansas. I had also made a contract with Muckleroy's boss, Tom Merrill, to go up the trail with him. Therefore, I bid my friends goodbye, not expecting to see them again until the coming fall. My wages were thirty-five dollars per month, and all expenses, including railroad fare back home.

After a month's hard work we had eleven hundred head of wild and woolly steers ready to turn over to the Muckleroy outfit at Thirteen mile point on the Mustang where they were camped. Their outfit consisted mostly of Kansas "short horns" which they had brought back with them the year before.

It was a cold, evening when the cattle were counted and turned over to Tom Merrill. Henry Coats, George Gifford and myself were the only boys who were turned over with the herd. We were almost worn out standing nights guarding half of every night for the past month, and then starting in with a fresh outfit made it appear tough to us.

That night it began to storm terribly and the herd began to drift early. By midnight we were five or six miles from camp. The steers showed a disposition to stampede, but we handled them easy and sang melodious songs which kept them quieted. About one o'clock they stampeded in grand shape. One of the "short horns," a long legged fellow by the name of Saint Clair got lost from the herd. And finally when he heard the singing he came dashing through the herd at full speed yelling, "Let 'em slide, we'll stay with 'em" at every jump.

They did slide sure enough, but he failed to "stay with 'em." For towards morning one of the boys came across him lying in the grass sound asleep. When he came dashing through the herd a stampede followed. The herd split up into a dozen different bunches. Each bunch going in a different direction. I found myself all alone with about three hundred of the frightened steers. Of course all I could do was to keep in front or in the lead and try to check them up. About three o'clock I finally stopped them. And after singing a few "lullaby" songs they all lay down and went to sleep.

After the last steer dropped down I concluded I would take a little nap too. So locking both legs around the saddle-horn and lying over on the tired pony's rump, with my left arm for a pillow, I fell asleep. The other hand still holding the bridle reins. I hadn't slept long when, for some unaccountable reason, every steer jumped to his feet, and they were off like a flash. My pony which was sound asleep became frightened, and he dashed off at full speed in the opposite direction.

Of course I was also frightened and hung to the saddle with a death grip. I was unable to raise myself up as the pony was going so fast. Therefore I had to remain as I was until after about a mile's run I got him checked up.

Just as soon as I got over my scare I struck out in a gallop in the direction I thought the cattle had gone, but failed to overtake them. I landed in camp about nine o'clock next morning. The rest of the boys were all there just eating their breakfast. Tom Merril and Henry Coats had managed to hold about half of the herd while the balance were scattered and mixed up with "range" cattle for twenty miles around.

After eating our breakfast and mounting fresh horses we struck out to gather up the lost steers. We could tell them from the range cattle by the fresh "road" brand which had been put there a few days before. By evening we had all but about one hundred head back to camp. On arriving at camp, we all caught fresh horses before stopping to eat dinner or supper, whichever you like to call it. The pony I caught was a wild one and after riding-up to camp and dismounting to eat dinner, he jerked loose from me and went flying with my star-spangled saddle.

I mounted a pony belonging to one of the other boys and went in hot pursuit. I got near enough once to throw my rope over his rump and that was all. After a run of fifteen miles I gave it up as a bad job and left him still headed for the Rio Grande.

I got back to camp just at dark and caught a fresh horse before stopping to eat my supper. It was still raining and had kept it up all day long. Mr. "Jim" Muckleroy had an extra saddle along. Therefore I borrowed it until I could get a chance to buy me another one.

After eating a cold supper, the rain having put the fire out, I mounted and went on "guard" the first part of the night. This was until one o'clock, being my regular time to stay with the herd while the last "guard" remained in camp and slept.

About ten o'clock it began to thunder and lightning which caused the herd to become unruly. Every time a keen clash of thunder would come, the herd would stampede and then run for a mile or two before we could get them to stop. It continued in that way all night so that we lost another night's rest. But we managed to "stay with 'em" this time — didn't even lose a steer.

That morning we struck out on the trail for Kansas. Everything went smoothly with the exception of a stampede now and then, and a fuss with Jim Muckleroy who was a regular old sore-head. Charlie, his brother, was a decent man. He wanted Coats and I, we being the only ones in the crowd who could ride wild horses, to do the wild horse riding for nothing. We finally bolted and told him that we wouldn't ride another wild horse except our regular "mount" unless he gave us extra pay. You see, he expected us to ride a horse a few times until he began to get docile — then turn him over to one of his men.

At High Hill in Fayette county I got the bounce from old Jim and a little further on Coats got the same kind of a dose. Later he fired others and hired other men in our places. He arrived in Wichita, Kansas with eight hundred steers out of the eleven hundred we started with.

After leaving the outfit I rode to the Sunset railroad at Shusenburgh and boarded a train for Columbus. Pat Muckleroy, Charlie's son, quit and went with me. His home was in Columbus and he persuaded me to accompany him. I went there and his ma was a kind-hearted lady. She could make big fat apple cobblers. I finally bought a horse and a saddle and left the town flat broke. I spent my last dime for a glass of lemonade just before leaving. Thus ended my first experience on the trail."

Of course, Charlie Siringo again went on the trail. Once he went with a herd of thirty-seven hundred steers but on the very night after getting them counted and ready to turn over to a Mr. Stephen, they stampeded. Half of them got away and mixed up with thousands of other cattle.

This Mr. Stephen thought he had an original idea. He bought a lot of new bulls-eye lanterns to be used around the herd on dark stormy nights. He figured that each man could tell just where the other was stationed by the reflection of his light. He gave one to Charlie Siringo who told them the entire idea was just a bit of nonsense. But Mr. Stephen insisted they try his idea. So that evening about ten o'clock, somebody suddenly flashed his bulls-eye lamp toward the herd. The stampede was on! It took about four days to find the steers and get them together again. Charlie Siringo loved his West and the old trail — that is no more. But he need not worry. For the spirit of the West will always live — in western fiction, adventure and romance.

— THE END —

BILLY THE KID

THE HOLD-UP
MAN

AS AMOS
CENTERED
THE SHOTGUN
ON HIM.
AMOS WAS HIT
BUT HIS AIM
AS HE PULLED
TRIGGERS...

THE OUTLAWS WORKED FAST,
THE LOCKS AND CHAINS WERE
NO OBSTACLE. THEY HAD
KEYS. THEN THEY WERE GONE...

THEY'RE GONE -- BUT THEY'RE NOT GOIN'
FAR. I'LL TWIST A KNOT IN THEIR TAILS
BEFORE THE SUN GOES DOWN.

BILLY THE KID

THE MAN THEY CALLED HAPPY JACK RODE HIS WHEEL HORSE TO TOWN! HIS SHOT-GUN WAS LOADED WITH GOOD SHELLS... AND HIS SIXGUN WAS READY...

SEEN WILL OBERSON OR HIS GANG? THEY MUST BE IN TOWN BY NOW!

IN THERE! WHAT'S WRONG, JACK?

TWO OF OBERSON'S MEN DREW GUNS AND ...

HE GOT SLADE AND TRIP!

I KNEW ABOUT THE DERRINGER TOO, OBERSON!

YOU THOUGHT I GET HIM, CASHED IN, WILL! HE'S EH? NO, BUT AMOS MANN DID! HE WAS MY PARD OBERSON!

LATER, AFTER THE MARSHAL HAD MADE SURE IT WAS SELF DEFENSE...

WHY'D HE STEAL HIS OWN BULLION, JACK?

IT WASN'T HIS -- THE OWNERS PAID HIM A SALARY! AMOS AND I KEPT HIM FROM STEALIN' IT BEFORE, HE WANTED TO GET RID OF US AND AT THE SAME TIME GET THE LOOT!
